Historical Note

Born in Frankfurt, Germany, in 1934, Mary Bauermeister (Bauermeister) studied at Art College of Design, Ulm, Germany.

Actively working as a freelance artist since 1957, Bauermeister opened "Studio Mary Bauermeister/Atelier Mary Bauermeister" where she invited artists such as John Cage, Nam June Paik, David Tudor and among others. Bauermeister planned and hosted avant-garde concert, happening, and performance, which also linked to the spark of Fluxus. Bauermeister and Nam June Paik had kept a life-long friendship since 1958 when they met each other for the first time. Bauermeister participated in the Originale, composed by Karlheinz Stockhausen in 1961, as the Painter, and Nam June Paik participated in the same piece doing Actions. Bauermeister closed her studio in 1962, and moved to New York where she had exhibitions in galleries including Galeria Bonino. Bauermeister pursued her career as an artist, showing her works through some solo and group exhibitions in the US as well as Europe. Bauermeister married to Karlheinz Sotckhausen in 1967 and had two children with him. Bauermeister moved back to Germany in 1972 and continued her work.
